The Ellixir of Life.

The medical faculty of New York city is gravely and earnestly discussing the recently published claim of Dr. Brown-Séquard, the eminent surgeon, that after twenty years of experimenting he had discovered a true ellixir of life, a substance that would rejuvenate the old and make strong the feeble. He contended that if the living cells of a young and vigorous being could be injected into another where the vital spark was low, his organism must vibrate in unison with the fresh life. Many years ago the doctor advanced views of the same character in a lecture before the medical faculty of Paris, and has since been engaged in experimenting on the subject by treating old and worn out animals. Finally as he says, he has reached such perfection that he tried his ellixir upon himself with startling results.

The doctor is now seventy-two years old and presumably is subject to the infirmities and weaknesses of age. His revitalizing substance, he explained, was derived from certain organs of glands, taken, still quivering, from live animals and reduced at once to a pulp in a mortar with distilled water. From this compound he extracts an essence which he uses as hypodermic injection.

The doctor administered to himself a cubic centimetre with a hypodermic syringe, just as morphine is injected. He declares that the day following this experiment, after two injections of this vital essence, he felt himself transformed. Up to that time half an hour's work standing up in his laboratory, exhausted him. Now he declares he can study three hours uninterruptedly without the least repose. His appetite has increased, his sleep is sweet and refreshing, his stomach performs its functions admirably and his intellectual labor is performed with wonderful ease and clearness. His feelings, also, have been youthful. Dr. Brown-Séquard declared that the dose he took was equivalent to 10 years' rejuvenation.

Medical men in New York are skeptical about the doctor's alleged discovery and smile incredulously when asked what they think about it. While they admit that all things are possible, they are far from ready to give credence to the story as it comes from France, or to accept the statement without further proof than has yet come to hand. —Rural Home.

There have been many original methods of getting to the Paris exhibition from distant places, but perhaps the most interesting were the three arrivals of wheelbarrowists. They started from Vienna about the first of July, one sitting in the barrow and one rolling him. They took a month for the journey. Mackey Austin, of Maple Run, W. Va., has a hen with a brood of twelve or fourteen young partridges. The eggs were found in a meadow while mowing and put under a hen for a day and night, and now Biddy is looking well after her queer brood.

A farmer near Corry, Pa., who had many sheep killed by dogs, built around the bodies an inclosure of rails twelve feet high, the rails being sloped so that dogs could easily get in but exit was impossible. In three night the farmer captured forty-six dogs.

A Mussey township farmer hired a boy—told him to salt the calf—boy rubbed about a quart into the calf's hide—colts got a sniff of the salt—calf was licked for three days and lost every hair—calf runs now from every living thing that comes toward him for fear of another licking—farmer mad—colts, including the boy, smile.—Port Huron Times.

"By Jove, Charlie, that's an awful jolly case you have there." "That's not a case, old man; it's a loaf of French bread I promised to take home to my wife, don't she know?"—Life.

Young Doctor—"Well, I've got a case at last." Young Lawyer—"Glad to hear it. When you get him to a point where he wants a will drawn, let me know."—Ex.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. A Boston lady, whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience before: "In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I had taken Hood's Sarsaparilla, knew what it was, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other. When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." Mrs. ELIZA A. GORE, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.
